

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Provided is a black ink for inkjet recording obtained by dissolving and/or dispersing, in an aqueous medium, at least one black azo dye having a specific property or structure and further containing at least one metal chelating agent, which is excellent in durability of image including image quality and discharge property even after the ink is filled in an ink cassette and stored for a long period of time while being set in a printer.